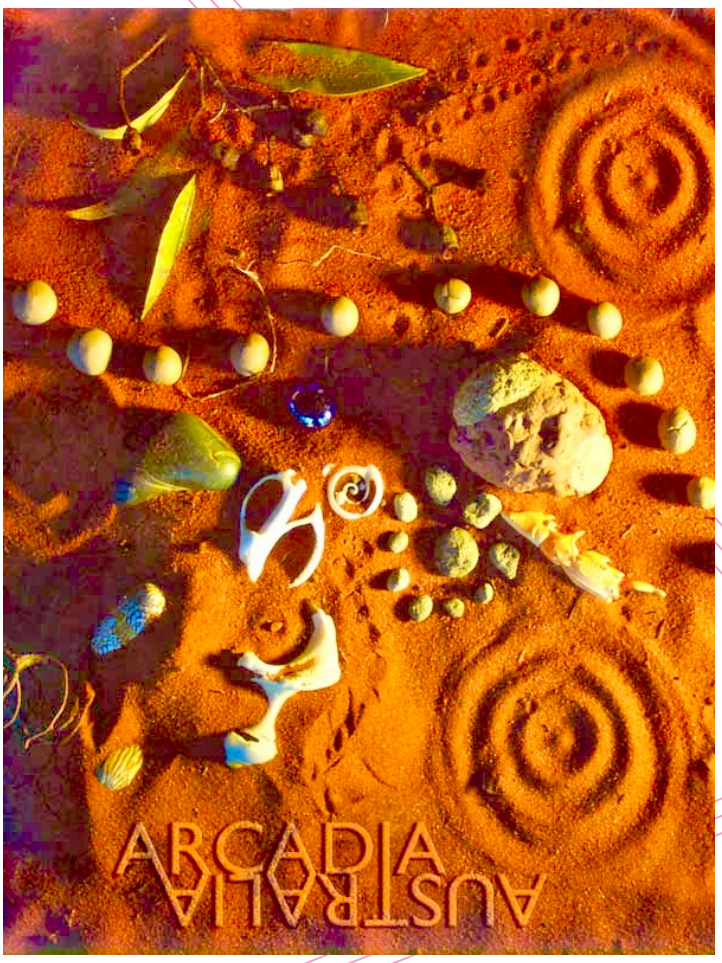
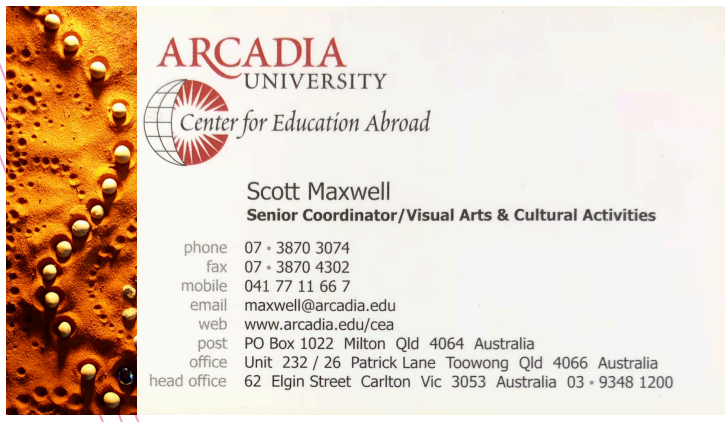
corporate designer



My working life can be roughly divided into quarters; 25% publishing design, 25% visual arts and 50% comprising an infusion of both and usually refers to large scale projects where there is an aesthetic distinctiveness/common thread unifying all the visual aspects, whether it be 2 dimensional, relief or sculptural.


All my corporate design employment has been on a full time basis in the energy, tourism and educational industries. All these roles required vastly different outcomes, technological changers and specific markets.
